The Seven Teachings Project is a collaboration between Harold Hatcher Elementary School and members of The Sharing Circle. It celebrates the diversity of Canadian society by exploring some of the beliefs and practices of Ojibway culture. Ten students were taken out to Dave Courchene, Jr.'s Turtle Lodge on Sagkeeng First Nation. It was there that the students received a Spirit Name and were bestowed the honour of being a Keeper for one of the Seven Teachings. As Keeper of the Teachings, the students took on the responsibility for portraying the spirit of that Teaching in a series of vignettes, or scenes. Each Keeper had a chance to introduce each vignette and narrate the action. The other students acted as crew persons and as actors.

Photo Finish

PHOTO FINISH is the story of 2 Manitoba horsemen who are doing their best to keep the thoroughbred racing industry flourishing in their province – trainer Carl Anderson and breeder Gary Strath.

Gary Strath is a farmer from just east of Souris Manitoba. A David among the Goliaths of Canadian thoroughbred breeders, Gary has evolved in a little more than a decade from a 'disillusioned grain farmer' to an 'award winning thoroughbred breeder'. In 2005 King of Jazz, bred and raised by Gary on his Stoneyfield Farm, finished second in Canada's most prestigious horse race, The Queen's Plate. And in 2006 another of Gary Strath's foals, 3 year old Kimchi won a Sovereign Award as Canada's top 3 year old filly. PHOTO FINISH tracks Gary Strath throughout the summer of 2006 as he preps his next crop of foals for the annual yearling sale in Keeneland Kentucky, and follows Kimchi's run for the 2006 Sovereign Award.

Carl Anderson first went to work as a stablehand at Assiniboia Downs when he was still a sixth grader. As a teenager, he earned his trainer's license. For more than 4 decades Carl has lived and breathed the thoroughbred business. His career has seen it's share of highs and lows - and reads like a checkered roadmap of Canadian race tracks. Among Carl's many stops, Assiniboia Downs in Winnipeg, Blue Bonnett in Montreal, Stampede Park in Calgary and Marquis Downs in Saskatoon. PHOTO FINISH follows Carl through the ups and downs of the 2006 racing season as he vies for the title of leading trainer at Assiniboia Downs.

The Nisichawayasihk Cree Nation of Manitoba is re-inventing its relationship with the non-Aboriginal community in ways that have rarely been seen anywhere else in the world. This is inspired by the community's desire for economic self-sufficiency and is evident in a bold move by this Indigenous community to partner with one of the largest public utilities in North America (Manitoba Hydro) in order to jointly build a hydroelectric power project on traditional NCN land. The question of what path to take into the 21st century is now being asked by many band members in a community referendum.
